Theme: A Connected World

This theme is to let students experience a cool art and design combined camp through the creation of an insightful stamp art project series. Apart from completing an outstanding art piece, students would learn about skills and knowledges in art and design, and finally get a cherishable collection of a self-created stamp art collections.

What you do:

- Start creating a unique art piece with clay relief and symbolic acrylic painting about students' vision of connecting our home to the world culturally or environmentally. |
- The painting will be printed on Macao Post and Telecommunications Bureau stamp template and postcard template with students' own designed custom-made font title. |
- Student will also create their own "postmark design" graphic to be silkscreened onto "T-shirt" as part of their collection series.

* The students' paintings will be printed on personalized stamps by the Macao Post and Telecommunications Bureau. Each student will receive 1 free sheet. Seize the chance!

★ Though topics are the same for all the students, teaching content and course materials may vary and will be adjusted to suit the levels of all individual students' abilities and ages with the aim to let students excel in their biggest creative potentials.

* All photos below are samples for camp project directions only!
Not actual products. Students would be creating their own art pieces.

This is the first creative camp organized by Communications Museum and the camp syllabus is designed by instructor Helena Man In Ng.

Helena Man In Ng, who was born and raised in Macau, is currently Registered Graphic Designer of Canada (RGD) and an award winning designer and illustrator internationally as well as in Macau. She has designed trademarks for many large organizations in Macau and a number of impressive stamp sets with unique topics for Macao Post and Telecommunications Bureau. She has been recipient of numerous awards in many Canadian and international design and illustration contests.

She is also principal and chief instructor of Beware Wet Paint Art School, Toronto, Canada. She is sophisticated with over 20 years of experiences in creative art education. She has been designing creative art programs and camps since 2005 and her camps are very popular among students. She is good at applying innovative teaching methods to inspire original insight and independent thinking, and improve the foundation of painting and creative skills. Over the years, she has trained many outstanding students in their artistic growth, successfully get accepted into universities, and achieve honours and awards in many major contests in Canada and around the world.
